2019:0003:0018	Homemade TV Being a Parent... Being a Child	Homemade TV	Bonnie Klein; Joanne Giardino; Susan Goddard	Portable Channel		"This three segment videotape consists of personal statements on a profoundly human theme. 'Father' by Bonnie Klein, video artist and filmmaker, is a portrait of Bonnie's husband as a father and reflects contemporary concerns about the confounding impact of feminism on family relationships. 'I Am A Child' by Joanne Giardino is a view of everyday world as seen through the eyes of a child. 'Timmy' by Susan Goddard explores the interaction of a handicapped child with his family and surroundings. This program was first aired on WXXI-TV, Rochester, New York, in April 1975, and was rebroadcast by popular request in June 1975. The program forms part of the experimental series called Homemade TV. This series constituted the first example of cooperation between a video group using half-inch videotape equipment and a public television station. It serves as a model for the kind of programming that arts, cultural, and community organizations can produce on cable and broadcast television." - Portable Channel Catalog	1/2 in. 2020:0001:0252	Homemade TV: Being a Parent... Being a Child	Homemade TV	Bonnie Klein; Joanne Giardina; Susan Goddard	Portable Channel	1975	"This three segment videotape consists of personal statements on a profoundly human theme. 'Father' by Bonnie Klein, video artist and filmmaker, is a portrait of Bonnie's husband as a father and reflects contemporary concerns about the confusing impact of feminism on family relationships. 'I Am A Child' by Joanne Giardina is a view of everyday world as seen through the eyes of a child. 'Timmy' by Susan Goddard explores the interaction of a handicapped child with his family and surroundings. This program was first aired on WXXI-TV, Rochester, New York, in April 1975, and was rebroadcast by popular request in June 1975. The program forms part of the experimental series called Homemade TV. This series constituted the first example of cooperation between a video group using half-inch videotape equipment and a public television station. It serves as a model for the kind of programming that arts, cultural, and community organizations can produce on cable and broadcast television." - Portable Channel Catalog	1/2 in. Produced by video artist Sanford Rockowitz in association with Portable Channel, this program won the 'DEMMY' away as the best locally produced documentary in 1974 to 1975. The program was broadcast on WXXI-TV in March, 1975, as part of Portable Channel's television series called Homemade TV. This series constituted the first example of cooperation between a video group using half-inch videotape equipment and a public television station. Thus it serves as a model for the kind of programming that arts, cultural, and community organizations can produce on cable and broadcast television. Black and white and color; 40 minutes." - Portable Channel Catalog	1/2 in. Open Reel				Portable Channel

Produced by video artist Sanford Rockowitz in association with Portable Channel; this program won the 'DEMMY' away as the best locally produced documentary in 1974 to 1975. The program was broadcast on WXXI-TV in March, 1975, as part of Portable Channel's television series called Homemade TV. This series constituted the first example of cooperation between a video group using half-inch videotape equipment and a public television station. Thus it serves as a model for the kind of programming that arts, cultural, and community organizations can produce on cable and broadcast television. In its look at two local black organizations, it presents a casual and revealing perspective which be difficult, if not impossible, for a non-black to perceive and document. 'Monroe County Community Organizers' features scenes from the People's Club, People's Liquor Store, and Youth Federation run by the non-profit corporation to provide economic stability for its service programs in the poor community; the Haiti Afro-American Cultural Center features art and music. The one hour black-and-white documentary focuses on the spiritual journey of Merrill Bittner, an "irregularly" ordained priest in the Episcopal Diocese of Rochester, from her ordination in July 1974, to her resignation from the church in April 1976. The tape reflects new understandings of sexual identity in the church and documents the conflict that arises when women attempt to fully function in a highly structured institution. For this videotape, Nancy Rosin was named "Producer of the Year" for 1976 by the Rochester Black Media Coalition." - Portable Channel Catalog	3/4 in. 2020:0002:0547	How to Fly	1982 CAPS Travel	Ed Bowes	Walsung Company	1982	"How to Fly" is Part 1 of a pilot for a 13-part series entitled "Adelaide and the Food Chain." Ed Bowes serves as chief writer and producer for an informal video repertory group, the Walsung Company (Ed Bowes, Tom Bowes, Karen Achenbach, Phil O'Reilly, Richard Tiernan, and Howard Grossman). Just as John Cage has said that a musical composition should have a beginning, middle, and end, but not necessarily in that order, so too does Ed Bowes' production and writing not provide this linear comfort. We find ourselves dropping in and out of parts of people's lives, examining their obsessions and very often their expectations, which do not gel with the activities going on in the video tape. - Steve Kolpan, from the 1982 CAPS Video/Multi-Media Festival Catalogue	3/4 in. 2020:0002:0662	How To Fly	1982 CAPS Travel	Ed Bowes	Walsung Company	1982	"How to Fly" is Part 1 of a pilot for a 13-part series entitled "Adelaide and the Food Chain." Ed Bowes serves as chief writer and producer for an informal video repertory group, the Walsung Company (Ed Bowes, Tom Bowes, Karen Achenbach, Phil O'Reilly, Richard Tiernan, and Howard Grossman). Just as John Cage has said that a musical composition should have a beginning, middle, and end, but not necessarily in that order, so too does Ed Bowes' production and writing not provide this linear comfort. We find ourselves dropping in and out of parts of people's lives, examining their obsessions and very often their expectations, which do not gel with the activities going on in the video tape..." - Steve Kolpan, from the 1982 CAPS Video/Multi-Media Festival Catalogue	3/4 in.
