Primarily Speaking offers a series of variations on the themes set forth in Around & About, integrating the social and political implications of electronic media. This pivotal tape extends the concerns and strategies of Around & About, coding, decoding and recoding the contexts of human interaction and more fully elaborating the earlier tape's expression of a longing for communion through language — "We are an act of faith," Hill entreats. Turning clichés like "take my word for it" into poetry through transformative juxtapositions, Hill employs a range of image/audio relationships and a more complex binocular construction that emphasizes the imagery, plays with context shifts, and foregrounds the implied dialogue." - from the Electronic Arts Intermix catalog, 1982-1983	3/4 in. Suggestopedia: A Science of Learning is a rare view of the Soviet educational system, in which Devyatkin's camera unobtrusively follows a teacher and her students through a course of foreign-language instruction at Moscow State Pedagogical Center. Ed Bowes serves as chief writer and producer for an informal video repertory group, the Walsung Company (Ed Bowes, Tom Bowes, Karen Achenbach, Phil O'Reilly, Richard Tiernan, and Howard Grossman). Just as John Cage has said that a musical composition should have a beginning, middle, and end, but not necessarily in that order, so too does Ed Bowes' production and writing not provide this linear comfort. We find ourselves dropping in and out of parts of people's lives, examining their obsessions and very often their expectations, which do not gel with the activities going on in the video tape..." - Steve Kolpan, from the 1982 CAPS Video/Multi-Media Festival Catalogue	3/4 in. 2020:0002:0662	How To Fly	1982 CAPS Traveling Video/Multi- media Festival	Ed Bowes	Walsung Company	1982		"How to Fly" is Part 1 of a pilot for a 13-part series entitled "Adelaide and the Food Chain." Ed Bowes serves as chief writer and producer for an informal video repertory group, the Walsung Company (Ed Bowes, Tom Bowes, Karen Achenbach, Phil O'Reilly, Richard Tiernan, and Howard Grossman). Just as John Cage has said that a musical composition should have a beginning, middle, and end, but not necessarily in that order, so too does Ed Bowes' production and writing not provide this linear comfort. We find ourselves dropping in and out of parts of people's lives, examining their obsessions and very often their expectations, which do not gel with the activities going on in the video tape..." - Steve Kolpan, from the 1982 CAPS Video/Multi-Media Festival Catalogue	3/4 in. 2020:0002:1369	Flow		Yau Ching		1993		"This experimental documentary uses the life stories of a Chinese woman artist to explore alternatives to dominant versions of history. Having grown up in China during the Cultural Revolution, she went to the U.S. to study, and upon the failure of the students' movements in 1989, she settled in New York. Flow's narratives are constructed from her extremely personal and often satirical points of view. Fragments of memory speak to the master narrative of history. Yau Ching writes, "An exiled native speaks a language not fully comprehensible to her 'fellow-natives' any more. A part of her is not able to go back any more. Given its politically subversive content, the very fact that this tape can only be made here, when the native is not at home, highlights the limitations of 'home.' Her memory haunts her and blocks her from being assimilated by the dominant American society. She lives in this 'between-world dilemma', deprived of the privileges of being fully identified as... human." - Yau Ching, yauching.com	VHS	39 min.	Color	Documentary, China	VSW Video Collection				no

The personal stories and expressions of loss and suffering we hear from both Lebanese and Palestinian women and men bring us to the fundamental cost of war: the human cost. The reality of civilian Lebanon is shared first-hand by the people who have experienced it. These interviews provide a direct, non-threatening approach to learning about the Lebanese situation. Children, women, and men bring us to understand the most basic elements of their survival and hope. Their voices must not remain unheard." - description from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. "Don't Move; Fight Back! -- A landlord stops providing service. Another illegally and violently removes tenants from their homes for purely speculative reasons. Parks become camping grounds for homeless men and women whose numbers are increasing. Don't Move; Fight Back! follows low-income residents of Manhattan's Upper West Side in their efforts to fight these abuses of their rights to decent affordable housing. The documentary provides the viewer with a picture of people's participation and their efforts to overcome the injustice of New York City's housing crisis. Electra Tries to Speak is all women trying to speak... though trained to nod and smile and keep quiet and look like they're understanding. Trying to speak after millenniums of cultural 'shush up,' Electra stammers, gushes, changes the subject, picks at her finger-nails, worries, gets angry, babbles, lies, looks happy whether she is or not, looks as if she's actually understanding. She wonders what she wants to be, wonders what they want her to be. She ranges through doubt, nervous repetition, confused role-playing to clear, forceful statement. She timidly asks to be heard, hopes she'll be heard; finally- 'God damn it, Daddy, listen to me' - demands to be heard. Electra is trying to speak, and someone had better damned well listen." - description from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. U-Matic	40 min.			VSW Video Collection				no

Eclipsed	"From Hair to There (1981), I Didn't Know How To Speak It -- Beyond the domains of song, chant, and speech, based upon words and tones, lies another domain: body music. Body music, based upon the 400 phonemes of the world's languages, thousands of out-of-speech sounds, baby utterances, percussion of the body, inner bodily sounds, and a myriad of animal sounds can be not only unusual but beautiful and powerful. This is what I finally convinced myself of after more than a hundred concerts given since 1980. What started out as a personal fantasy has become concrete enough to allow me to integrate it in 1984 with a music of "all the possible sounds" considered as signals: hypergraphic music; Robert Rayher, 11 Brantford Place, Buffalo, NY 14222 -- Eclipsed comes out of my previous film-work-as-a translation of a film into the video medium. I have worked commercially in film and tape post-production, specializing for a time as a kinescope (tape to film transfer) and telecine (film to tape transfer) operator. Out of an intense assessing of the possibilities of translation from one medium to the other, I began to sculpt works based on the possibilities I found in this interface. Blue Swee	"The Other Side is a portrait of a woman in a place and her journey to 'the volcano.' The journey, the space that surrounds it, the unknown 'other side,' represent paths of the artist's life. It is a portrait that opens up to the illusionary practice by which video makes itself actual. Correspondence, combined with the music of Carol Parkinson, is a construction of con- temporary international signs and symbols twice removed. Progress, a formal synthesis of technology and the displacement of nature, features music by George Elliot; 'Blue swee' is a Jamaican expression used to describe things that are hard to define. It seemed like a good way of describing U.S. intervention in Grenada. The images were recorded in the Bronx, NY during my residency at the Bronx Museum of Art. The tape also includes documentary film footage of civil rights demonstrations, and pertinent off- air news. This is not a documentary-the music and images suggest metaphoric meanings." - descriptions from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. U-Matic	40 min.			VSW Video Collection				no

The fourth "I Don't Dream" moves viewers through an inexplicable maze of political events, apprehended through mass media, into one's personal emotive response to those events. 2020:0002:2513	No-TV #3 Week 10	NO-TV #3	Women's Video Collective	Visual Studies Workshop	1985-12-17	Stronger Than Before	"STRONGER THAN BEFORE is a 27-minute documentary produced by the Women's Video Collective. The tape chronicles the events of the Summer of 1983 at the Women's Peace Camp in Romulus, New York, which was set up to protest the storage of nuclear weapons at the nearby Seneca Army Depot. Throughout the summer women from around the world lived at the campsite and participated in daily civil disobedience actions, vigils, and marches to the main gate of the depot. The peace camp was open from July 4 until Labor Day; on August 1st, 3,000 women marched to the gate and 244 women were arrested for going over the depot fence. The women who stayed on the land during the summer made all decisions by the consensus process, and held workshops on issues of concern to women and to the survival of the planet. Underlying their existence was a belief in creating a viable feminist lifestyle as an alternative to hierarchical/patriarchal systems. The women were challenged almost daily by local residents about their lifestyles and presence in the community. However, by the end of the summer, many villagers accepted and welcomed the Women's Peace Camp, and some local women had actively participated in camp activities. A few women remained living in the house on the land during the winter of 1983- 1984, and the camp was again opened for the summer of 1984. Women intend to stay on the land (the land is owned by a small group of women but the space is open for all women to use) for as long as it is financially possible and necessary, serving as a constant presence in the shadow of the nuclear threat." - description from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. 2020:0002:2514	No-TV #3 Week 11	NO-TV #3	1. Reynold Weidenaar; 2. Mark Brady	Visual Studies Workshop	1985-12-24	1. The Stillness 2. First Person, Familiar Places	"THE STILLNESS 13 min. -- A young woman waits in a lonely subway station. She paces slowly. From this minor, everyday situation emerges an extended world of internal feelings. These are reflected first in sound, which is built up of resonances of distant voices, the ambient electrical buzzes and cavernous hums of the station, and the clatter of the moving train. The soundscape is elaborated by voice-like alto and soprano saxophones, as they sing, wail, laugh, and gasp for breath. Eventually they subside to states of grace, peace, then repose. Through video image processing, the scene of the young woman is freed to become part of many forms and colors. She moves as in a dreamflow adagio. Highlights of liquid color, slow flickers of near and distant images, floating bands of vision-all form a dialogue with the sound and the music; FIRST PERSON, FAMILIAR PLACES 14 min. -- FIRST PERSON, FAMILIAR PLACES is a personal documentary, autobiographical in nature, dealing with a past relationship with a woman, its development and transition into long distance, and the subsequent loss of it. Pain, grief, and memory of the loss along with aspects of psychological, emotional, and physical states are focused on in looking at how one is affected by a relationship that remains tangible only through the past. How can one document what has passed or is passing, and how is one affected by the "presence of the absent," are questions that are raised and attempted to be answered. My interests also lie in extending the traditional narrative form by taking advantage of a structure that incorporates a storytelling quality yet is non-linear, and at times fragmented in nature. The viewer will follow the narrator through a series of phases or states of mind: they include attempts on the narrator's part to deal with the recreated past, recognition of the loss, release from the past, renewal, and finally recovery and acceptance." - descriptions from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. THE TRAIN RIDE recalls a fantasy a woman has concerning her various relations. In both the fantasy and her reality, we slowly see the failures of her relationships unravel. She starts out alone in the illusion but has an affair with a man she eventually rejects. 2020:0002:2519	No-TV #3 Week 2	NO-TV #3	Keith Johnson & Gerald MacKenzie- Castro	Visual Studies Workshop	1985-10-22	Ensayo	"The source of the formal and substantive projects of ENSAYO is the tradition of the literary essay. In Jose Ortega y Gasset's Meditación Del Marco, the Spanish writer sets out to write a single page on a "simple" topic. A dozen pages and subjects later, he surrenders to the ultimate inextricability of all human inquiries. The work of Michel de Montaigne, his free explorations into almost every conceivable subject, revealing process as an aesthetic end in itself, is another powerful influence on our tape. Thus, while it may be considered avant-garde when measured against today's conventions, it in fact finds its artistic foundations on a classic genre, and on ideas that Montaigne traces as far back as Horace. We have also found affinities with such recent work as Julio Cortazar's Hopscotch and Anti-Oedipus by Gilles Deleuze and Felix Guattari." - description from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. 2020:0002:2520	No-TV #3 Week 3	NO-TV #3	Angelo Jannuzzi	Visual Studies Workshop	1985-10-29	Burnside	"This videotape concerns itself with the views of the people in the Southwest Bronx. Burnside Avenue, a commercial, residential district, whose inhabitants live in a neighborhood of burnt-out buildings, fire bombed stores and rubble lots, bears the problems of the South Bronx without the support of any governmental programs. The housing around this commercial strip is half vacant with many doorways and windows not properly sealed and therefore an invitation to further violence. The current medium income for this once prosperous area is $16,000 for a family of four; a statistic from the one remaining bank in the area, there were once four. Subsequently, the unfortunate death of Elenore Bumpers occurred not far from this area. It was our premise to interview people from various positions within the community to access how one's role in life, e.g., police officer, father of six, store owner, influences one's concerns. But, BURNSIDE is something more than this. It is an expressionistic documentary which concerns itself with the hopes, anger, prejudice and aspirations of a forgotten community." - description from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. U-Matic	28 min. Mild Style	"ANXIETY, RELIGION AND ART is an interview/conversation on the subjects of anxiety, religion and art. MILD STYLE is Paul McMahon's first music videotape and it shows him doing ludicrous renditions of several popular break dancing moves. He is also the singer and guitarist on this rap song. The other musicians; Dave Hofstra, on bass, has been a fixture in the downtown rock and jazz scene since his days with the Contortions. Mark Valenza, a veteran of the New Wave club scene is currently involved in a recording group called A Few Shells. He did percussion and had a hand in the arrangement here. Ericka Beckman, on camera, is a well known artist filmmaker, included in this year's New York Film Festival." - description from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. U-Matic	26 min. From Gene Machine	"WE ARE WATCHING YOU 15 min. -- The footage in this tape is from surveillance cameras. The voices have been altered to give them an electronic/computer like sound, something automatic. We are told... "interact," "react," "watch," "we are watching you," "who controls the past, controls the future; LA CI DAREM LA MANO 5 min. -- A visual poem; FROM GENE MACHINE 10 min. -- The video-hypergraphy FROM GENE MACHINE suggests that humans do have the ability to choose the way they process the basic (reptilian) drives inherited from evolution's "gene machine." Jean-Paul Curtay was from 1967 through 1974 a member of the Letterist group in Paris. Isidore Isou, the founder of Letterism, started to create visual works with words in 1946 which he associated in the early fifties with any writing system, symbol, maps and graphs, figurative objects arranged in a narrative sequence.... This art, based on all known or invented visual signs, was found different from figurative or abstract art and named 'Hypergraphics.' 2020:0002:2708	NO-TV #3 Week 12	NO-TV #3	Dale Hoyt		1985	The Complete Anne Frank	"THE COMPLETE ANNE FRANK is not a satire," insists artist Dale Hoyt. Instead, he describes his newest videotape as 'a psychedelic soap operetta' based on Anne Frank: The Diary of A Young Girl. That document, of course, chronicles the two years Anne Frank spent hiding from the Nazis during WWII, sequestered with seven other Dutch Jews in an Amsterdam attic. The tape depicts the diary in a montage of lush, abstract and prismatic visuals counterpointed against traditional teleplay staging of the story. Four actresses (including performance artist Leni Fellini) portray the Dutch teenager's sorrows, anger, joys and awakening sexuality as she grows from a precocious school girl to an insightful and pensive young woman. Despite its visionary interpretation, THE COMPLETE ANNE FRANK follows the diary faithfully, unlike the theatre, film and television adaptations, all of which have been steeped in license and liberties. The work also includes the first dramatizations of newly translated writings by Frank (previously withheld by her father) published in the controversial collection Tales from the Secret Annex. The tape reverently commemorates the 40th anniversary of Anne Frank's death in the concentration camp Bergen-Belsen. After a year and a half of research and production, Hoyt feels that it is not only a valid rendering of Frank's story, but also a highly personal work, dealing with his relationship with Anne Frank as myth, media icon, and person." - description from the NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. Beginning in East Berlin, the viewer sees people strolling freely in the perviously forbidden zone near the Brandenburg Gate and the Wall with its fresh and timely graffiti. Letter to the Editor is one in a series of tapes about Seneca Lake (one of the Finger Lakes in upstate NY) that deal with how people interact with the natural environment. Using an actual letter to a local paper, the tape tells one person's version of a subject of great controversy — how many times the lake has frozen over." - excerpted from NO-TV catalogue	3/4 in. 2020:0002:2811	Nathan Lyons: An Interview		Lyn Blumenthal; Kate Horsfield	Video Data Bank, School of the Art Institute of Chicago	1978	Nathan Lyons	"Nathan Lyons (b.1930) has contributed to the field of photography as a critic, author, curator, educator, and photographer. He has published several books and catalogs, including Photographers on Photography (1966), Photography in the 20th Century (1967), Towards a Social Landscape (1967), Persistence of Vision (1968), and Notations in Passing (1974). His body of work consists primarily of photographs which focus on American culture. In this interview with Alex Sweetman, Lyons discusses his interest in the concept of 'resources,' both physical and human. 'Those two things are often confused in institutional structures,' he notes." - Video Data Bank	3/4 in. U-Matic	46 min.
